Market Commentary & Outlook

Equity markets continued to grind higher around the world in the first half of 2017, bolstered by a combination of improving global growth and strengthening corporate earnings. The MSCI ACWI Investable Market Index (IMI) gained 11.32% in USD terms for the six-month period (net of taxes on dividends). Non-US equities outperformed during the period, led by the 18.11% advance in Emerging Markets equities as measured by the MSCI EM IMI (net). The weaker dollar provided a significant tailwind to non-US equity returns in the first half of 2017, reversing all of its gains post the US presidential election.

The euro, sterling and yen all appreciated versus the dollar during the six-month period. Improving growth and inflation outlooks contributed to non-US currency strength to varying degrees. The prospects for interest rate policy normalisation in the UK and Euro Area ignited a strong rally in both currencies at the end of June, amid what appeared to be coordinated statements from the heads of the Bank of England and European Central Bank, setting the stage for a withdrawal of stimulus measures.

Emerging Markets were led during the period by the larger Asian countries of China, India, Korea and Taiwan, supported primarily by the strong rally in technology shares. Mexico also outperformed on the back of the resurgent peso, which regained all of the ground it had lost versus the dollar in the wake of Trump's election victory, as his administration toned down its rhetoric. Among other primary EM countries, Brazil and Russia significantly underperformed during the first half of 2017. Both were hampered to varying degrees by the weaker oil price environment. Brazilian equities were also shaken by new corruption allegations against President Temer in May, which threatened to derail his presidency and the country's fragile economic recovery.

Healthcare, Information Technology and Industrials were the top performing sectors during the first half of 2017, as measured by the MSCI ACWI IMI (net). In contrast, the Energy sector lagged significantly amid the pullback in oil prices, driven by concerns of oversupply conditions and lackluster demand. From a global style perspective, William Blair's proprietary quantitative model performance demonstrated a rotation from low valuation market leadership earlier in the year to a more balanced style backdrop in the second quarter, favouring quality, earnings trend and momentum factors (as measured by top quintile minus bottom quintile model returns); a more conducive market backdrop to our fundamental, bottom-up process.

Aggregate global corporate revenue results from the most recent earnings season indicated that the on-going global economic expansion is broadening. Revenue growth accelerated in many areas that had already been strong. From a global portfolio strategy perspective, we continue to see upside risk to nominal growth and have generally positioned toward companies with rising earnings prospects that, we believe, are not fairly reflected in valuations. At the same time, economic expansion favours more active stock selection across all sectors.

Specific to Emerging Markets, valuations remain relatively favourable (based on forward P/E multiples) despite the first-half market rally, reflecting positive earnings revisions. After stagnating the last few years, Emerging Market corporate earnings are forecast to increase at a double-digit pace this year. From an external balance perspective, Emerging Markets currencies have already depreciated and current account deficits have moderated.

Key risk factors for Emerging Markets remain a strengthening in US dollar and acceleration in US interest rate hikes in addition to protectionist measures that impede global trade. Concerns about China's capital outflows and currency management have moderated following the government's efforts to combat capital flight this year; The People's Bank of China has stated that it will continue to keep liquidity in the financial system stable.

Performance

The Global Leaders Fund outperformed the MSCI ACWI IMI (net) for the quarter, driven primarily by favourable overall stock selection by sector and region. By sector, Financials and Information Technology (IT) were key contributors to performance. Within Financials, India-based HDFC Bank's share price was bolstered by solid quarterly financial results that showed an acceleration in growth, market share gains and higher margins. Of particular note was HDFC's robust 31% growth in low cost CASA (current account and savings account) deposits - a significant competitive advantage that allows HDFC to offer clients a more competitive rate and take market share from the State banks. Within IT, exposure to internet services was beneficial. Chinese e-commerce company, Alibaba, was the leading contributor during the quarter, supported by strength in its core commerce business, as well as new areas including cloud and payments. Healthcare stock selection was also positive, bolstered by US-based Align Technology, which reported accelerating volume growth amid robust consumer demand for its transparent aligners (or teeth braces).

These positive effects were partially offset by weak stock selection in Industrials and Materials, and the underweight Healthcare. Within Industrials, Japanese automation company Fanuc's share price weakened following a strong run during 4Q16-1Q17. The company reported fiscal fourth quarter earnings that were ahead of consensus estimates, but issued weaker than expected profit guidance for the 2018 fiscal year, primarily due to conservative foreign exchange rate assumptions. German industrial conglomerate Siemens also detracted, despite the company reporting strong quarterly earnings results driven by its Digital Factory business and overall margin improvement. Within Materials, Canadian-based copper miner, First Quantum Minerals, underperformed, posting weaker than expected first quarter earnings, due to a loss on its copper hedges. By region, stock selection was strongest in the US and Emerging Asia region during the quarter, partially moderated by weak stock selection in Europe.

Strong six-month outperformance was driven by positive stock selection on a sector and regional basis. From a sector perspective, Healthcare, IT and Financials stock selection were primary contributors. Within Healthcare, stock selection was bolstered by VCA, a leading provider of animal hospitals and diagnostic laboratories in North America, which agreed to be acquired by Mars, pet care provider, at a 31% premium to its pre-announcement share price in early January. The stock was subsequently liquidated from the portfolio. Australia-based biotechnology company, CSL, also contributed strongly, benefiting from solid financial results that were driven by better than expected growth in its plasma proteins business. Within the IT sector, Chinese e-commerce company, Alibaba, and, within Financials, India-based HDFC Bank, were key contributors as explained above.

These positive 1H17 effects were partially offset by negative stock selection in Materials, Energy and Consumer Staples and the underweight Healthcare. Within Materials, diversified mining company, BHP Billiton, weakened after a strong run in the second half of 2016, amid concerns about lower commodity prices and slowing demand from China. Canadian-based copper miner, First Quantum Minerals, also underperformed. Energy stock selection also detracted from 1H17 performance, primarily driven by the position in US oil company, Hess Corp, as the weaker oil price was a broad headwind for the stock and management's below-consensus production guidance also weighed on sentiment. By region, stock selection was strongest in the US and Emerging Asia during 1H17, partially moderated by weak stock selection in the UK and Canada.

The securities listed below are the top contributors to performance for the quarter ended 30/06/2017.

YUM China Holdings is the largest restaurant company in China with exclusive rights to Pizza Hut, KFC and Taco Bell. First quarter results were better than expected, with same store sales, margins, and earnings growth all above consensus expectations. Additionally, YUM's self-improvement efforts are starting to bear fruit with its continued push on digital, delivery and store upgrades.

Alibaba Group Holding is the leading e-commerce company in China. It provides online and mobile marketplaces in retail and wholesale trade, as well as cloud computing and other services. The company delivered another quarter of strong results with revenue and operating profit growth of 60% YoY and 86% YoY respectively, exceeding consensus estimates. The share price surged after management indicated at its investor presentation that it expects sales to rise 45%–49% in 2018 amid increased retail monetization (higher conversion rates and click volumes) and accelerating cloud computing growth.

Tencent Holdings, the Chinese internet company, is the largest online network provider of free instant messaging, online gaming and social network sites in China. The share price performance was underpinned by strong fundamental trends and positive investor sentiment. Tencent reported 55% YoY revenue growth in 1Q17 (vs. consensus expectations of 47%), driven by solid gaming growth, pick up in advertising and 224% growth in other revenue (including cloud and payments).

AIA is a leading insurer in Asia, offering life insurance, accident and health insurance, and wealth management services throughout the region. Through an extensive network of agents, it serves customers across 15 geographic markets with leading market share in Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand and the Philippines. AIA delivered strong first quarter results driven by business in China which benefited from an increase in new agents and stronger productivity.

HDFC bank is the second largest private consumer and mortgage bank by assets in India, offering a wide array of banking products and financial services to corporate and retail customers. The company delivered solid 4Q results, specifically an acceleration in growth, market share gains, and higher margins. Better than expected results coupled with upbeat management outlook further supported investor sentiment and the share price performance.

The securities listed below are the largest detractors to performance for the quarter ended 30/06/2017.

Schlumberger is the leader in global oil service technology. We remain constructive on oil market fundamentals and see an increasingly likelihood of a medium-term supply deficit due to persistent underinvestment in new supply. Schlumberger's stock price suffered in the second quarter due to the decline in oil prices.

O'Reilly Automotive is retailer of auto parts in the United States serving do-it-yourself and professional customers. First quarter results fell short of expectations with same store sales coming in shy of company guidance. Additionally, concerns around slowing industry trends in vehicle aging as well as potential increases in online competition weighted on the stock price.

Pioneer Natural Resources is a leading oil and gas exploration company with two thirds of revenues coming from the Eagle Ford and Permian Basin. It has a large resource base with massive resource potential, there is sufficient data to know the geologic concept for the resource extension will work, and it has a sound balance sheet. Quarterly results were mixed, with earnings coming in better than expected but volumes lower than consensus, and the stock prices declined in the second quarter due to a significant decline in the price of oil.

First Quantum Minerals is a copper mining company in the process of bringing on significant new capacity which we believe should lead to above average production growth to 2020. Stock performance suffered in the second quarter due to softening copper prices in April and May, but rallied into quarter-end as commodity prices recovered.

Lam Research is a global supplier of advanced wafer fabrication equipment and services to the semiconductor industry. The company designs, manufactures, sells, and services semiconductor processing systems that are used in the fabrication of integrated circuits. Lam exceeded quarterly expectations driven by strong 3D NAND equipment sales and foundry shipments. Additionally, Lam is incrementally more positive on 2017 spending growth with improved visibility into the back half of the year.

No Investment Advice

This document has been produced for information purposes only and is not to be construed as investment advice or a solicitation or an offer to purchase or sell investments or related financial instruments to any recipients. The investments in the Fund may not be suitable for all recipients. This document does not contain personalized recommendations or advice and is not intended to substitute any professional advice on investment in financial products. Recipients of this document should make their own investment decisions based upon the Fund Documents listed above (which can be obtained free of charge) and in accordance with their own financial objectives and financial resources and, if in any doubt, should seek advice from independent professional advice as to risks and consequences of any investment

Risks - Recipients of this document should be aware of the risks detailed in this paragraph.

Please be advised that any return estimates or indications of past performance on this document are for information purposes only. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance and no assurance can be made that the profits will be achieved or that substantial losses will not be incurred. The value of shares and any income from them can increase or decrease. An investor may not get back the amount originally invested. Where investment is made in currencies other than the investor's base currency, the value of those investments, and any income from them, will be affected by movements in exchange rates. This effect could be unfavourable as well as favourable. Levels and bases for taxation may change. Further specific risks may arise in relation to specific investments and you should review the risk factors very carefully before investing. Intended risk profile of the Fund may change overtime. The Fund is designed for long-term investors. For the most current month-end performance information, please visit our web site at sicav.williamblair.com.
