Market Commentary & Outlook

Global equities continued to march higher in the third quarter, supported by generally solid corporate fundamentals and positive growth conditions across the major economies. The ACWI IMI – MSCI's broadest measure of global equity performance – advanced 5.32% during the quarter and 17.24% year to date through September (in USD terms). Emerging market equities continued to outpace developed markets during the quarter, supported by continued strength in technology shares and a rebound in the energy sector.

European equity outperformance was driven by the region's ongoing economic recovery, improving corporate fundamentals and investors' perception of a potentially stronger European Union following the French and German elections. The euro appreciated nearly 4% versus the US dollar during the quarter and 12% year to date, driven by expectations for higher inflation and gradual interest rate normalisation by the European Central Bank. Currency strength also bolstered UK returns during the quarter as the Bank of England laid the groundwork for tighter monetary policy to combat inflation.

U.S. equities achieved record highs during the quarter, overcoming mounting tensions with North Korea and weaker GDP growth expectations in the aftermath of Hurricanes Harvey, Irma and Maria. Within Japan, the release of encouraging economic data in September helped to propel equities higher into quarter end. While core inflation, labour market and industrial production data for August were broadly positive, Prime Minister Abe's decision to call a snap election raised some uncertainty on the policy outlook.

Emerging market quarterly gains were paced by Brazil, which rebounded from the latest presidential corruption scandal amid the country's nascent consumer-led economic recovery. Russia and China also posted double-digit gains for the quarter. More than half of MSCI China IMI's 14.49% quarterly gain was driven by the Information Technology sector, with the balance spread among Consumer Discretionary, Financials and Real Estate (source: Factset).

From a global sector perspective based on the MSCI ACWI IMI, Energy was the leading performer for the quarter, benefiting from the bounce in crude oil prices, followed closely by the Information Technology and Materials sectors. In contrast, Consumer Staples significantly lagged for the quarter, with particular weakness in U.S. and Japanese tobacco stocks.

The performance of William Blair's proprietary quantitative models demonstrated that momentum and earnings trend style factors outperformed during the quarter, while quality, fundamental volatility and valuation underperformed. These style trends were particularly acute within emerging markets (source: William Blair Summit).

The latest high frequency data and surveys indicate that ongoing economic expansion is gathering pace, especially in the Eurozone. At the same time, wage growth continues to be modest across most developed markets, and this is beginning to restrain consumer behaviour. In Q3 2017, retail sales volumes growth decelerated across all major developed economies. From the perspective of corporates, top line growth is currently in the range of 6-10% pa; it is not meaningfully higher across emerging markets. Beyond improving corporate performance, the outlook for the remainder of this year remains relatively benign, as major national elections, especially in Europe, produced outcomes favourable for continued growth.

From a global strategy perspective, we continue to see upside potential to nominal growth in select companies and industries, as expectations do not appear extended. We do not expect the unfolding gradual withdrawal of monetary policy stimulus to be detrimental to growth either in the US or in the Eurozone, where policy action is not expected until 2018. Corporate performance in the 2H 2017 is likely to be stronger in Europe and in Japan, as economic expansion in the US is relatively more mature. Emerging markets are well positioned to participate in the ongoing global expansion and valuations remains relatively favourable. Recent US dollar strength is unlikely to dampen the fortunes of corporates in emerging markets materially.

Performance

Outperformance versus the MSCI Emerging Markets IMI was driven by positive stock selection across most sectors, led by Financials and Consumer Discretionary. Within Financials, bank and insurance holdings were leading contributors. India-based, Yes Bank, was supported by consensus-beating quarterly financial results that demonstrated solid loan growth (+32% Y/Y) and margin expansion. China's Ping An Insurance also benefited from a positive earnings surprise, highlighted by 46% growth in the value of new life business, which significantly outpaced consensus expectations of 35%-40% growth.

Management's decision to increase the dividend payout ratio from 9% to 21% also bolstered investor confidence. Within the Discretionary sector, Chinese tutoring services company TAL Education was a notable contributor, driven by strong operating trends. The company reported fiscal Q1 sales growth of 65% Y/Y driven by robust enrollment growth.

Partially off-setting these positive effects were stock selection in the Energy and Real Estate sectors, and the underweight Materials. Within Energy, Brazilian refining and marketing company Ultrapar Participacoes was hampered by weaker than expected earnings in its retail fuels business. Indian gas company Petronet's share price weakened in July on concerns about softening liquefied natural gas (LNG) demand, although the company's quarterly earnings release in September was positive, driven by solid LNG import volumes. Within Real Estate, the lack of exposure to Chinese property stocks was the primary detractor.

By country, outperformance during the quarter was driven primarily by China, Korea and India stock selection. These positive effects were partially offset by the overweight Indonesia and underweight Russia, as well as Mexico stock selection. Within Mexico, airport holdings Grupo Aeroportuario del Sureste and Grupo Aeroportuario del Pacifico underperformed amid some profit taking following a strong rally in the first half of the year.

The securities listed below are the top contributors to performance for the quarter ended 30/09/2017.

Alibaba Group Holding is the leading e-commerce company in China. It provides online and mobile marketplaces in retail and wholesale trade, as well as cloud computing and other services. Alibaba continued to deliver better than expected results with FQ1 revenue up 56% YoY, earnings up 41% YoY and significant margin expansion. Strong results were primarily driven by robust trends in core commerce amid strong mobile user growth (MAU reaching 529 million), improved engagement, as well as higher click-through rates as a result of recent algorithm improvements. Cloud computing was also contributed to Alibaba's strong operating performance, with revenue increasing 96% YoY on the back of higher paying users (exceeding one million) and ARPU.

Tencent Holdings, the Chinese internet company, is the largest online network provider of free instant messaging, online gaming and social network sites in China. The strong share price performance was underpinned by continued robust fundamental trends. Tencent's 2Q17 revenue grew 59% YoY, topping consensus estimates, on the back of accelerating gaming (on higher ARPU) and strong advertising revenue growth despite the company's conservative approach to social network ads. In addition, payments and cloud continued to post triple-digit growth amid Tencent's growing market share.

Sunny Optical is a Chinese designer and manufacturer of optical and optical-related products and scientific instruments. The company has captured the largest share of the Chinese smartphone camera module and lens market. The share price rallied 77% in the third quarter after the company announced a 1H profit alert on the back of higher volumes of handset and vehicle lens sets /modules and better product mix, and delivered better-than-expected operating results, with net profit up 149% YoY mainly driven by higher margins on better product mix.

A spinoff of Sina to a separate entity in 2014, Weibo is a Chinese microblogging website with more than 300M MAUs, particularly popular with internet celebrities. Sina and Alibaba own 51% and 34% of the company respectively. The share price accelerated on the back of Weibo's strong Q2 revenue growth of 72% YoY and upbeat management guidance. Better-than-expected results were largely driven by Weibo's membership revenue coupled higher gross margin.

TAL Education Group is a leading K-12 after-school tutoring services provider in China. The company delivers its services through small classes, one-on-one, and online courses. Strong F1Q operating results and growth outlook drove the share price outperformance. TAL's sales and operating profits grew 65% YoY and 124% YoY respectively, on the back of robust enrollment growth, favorable price mix and margin expansion. Solid growth outlook is underpinned by continued capacity expansion, with 60 new learning centers added in the quarter and additional 20-25 new centers expected to open in F2Q.

The securities listed below are the largest detractors from performance for the quarter ended 30/09/2017.

Netease is the Chinese online gaming company. The company has generated exceptional returns which have been increasingly invested in strengthening its mobile presence and under-appreciated non-gaming assets. These non-gaming assets have seen an acceleration in growth, as management drives broader monetization initiatives. Following a strong first half of 2017, the share price declined in the 3rd quarter after the company announced that both deferred revenue balance and game revenues had declined QoQ for the first time since 2015.

ITC is an Indian conglomerate primarily operating in the cigarette, FMCG (primarily food), hotel, paper, and agri-business industries. ITC is Asia's second-biggest listed tobacco company. The share price plunged after the India's GST council announced an increase in cess rates for cigarettes for the GST regime. We eliminated the stock based on concern over additional tax levies.

Astra International is an Indonesian conglomerate with activities in automotive, heavy equipment, financial services, agribusiness and information technology businesses. The share price declined after the company reported 2Q net income growth of 7%, which was a sharp deceleration from 60% growth in 1Q. The slowdown was due to weakness in the auto distribution business and the palm oil business. We eliminated the stock amid portfolio repositioning and due to weakening operating trends in the near term.

Hon Hai Precision is the Taiwanese electronics manufacturing services company. Following robust share price performance in prior quarters in anticipation of the upcoming strong iPhone cycle, Hon Hai shares weakened in September as early sales of Apple's new iPhone 8 disappointed compared to trends for previous models.

Natco is a small-cap Indian pharma company with a leading share in the fast-growing oncology market and is also one of only a handful of pharma companies selling hepatitis C drugs in India and other emerging markets. The share price sharply declined after the company announced the approval for generic Copaxone would be in 2018 vs 2017, citing administrative delays from the FDA.
