Market Review

Global equity markets posted mixed results for the first half of 2018, buffeted by escalating trade tensions, the U.S. Federal Reserve's continued tightening bias and dollar strength. In contrast to the global synchronised expansion environment of 2017, equity performance in the first six months of 2018 reflected a growing divergence, with the U.S. economy, earnings and share prices maintaining positive momentum while the rest of the world rolled over.

The benign 2017 environment of low volatility and uninterrupted monthly gains abruptly reversed course in late January 2018, as worries about the extended bull market and narrowing leadership culminated in heavy selling pressure following reports that a handful of niche equity volatility-linked ETF products had suffered significant losses, stoking fears of broader risk contagion.

As the first half progressed, investors became increasingly concerned that the Trump administration's pursuit of protectionist measures would ignite a trade war with China and potentially derail the U.S. expansion. The slowing pace of economic activity in Europe combined with increased turbulence in emerging markets also weighed on investor sentiment.

U.S. equities extended their gains during the first half of 2018 and significantly outpaced non-U.S. markets, bolstered by strong corporate earnings and tax reform. Non-U.S. developed market equity performance was hampered by negative returns in Europe amid softening economic data and renewed political turmoil in Italy. The euro depreciated approximately 3% versus the dollar in 1H18, reflecting these concerns in addition to expectations for prolonged monetary stimulus from the European Central Bank, which announced that interest rates would remain at record lows through the summer of 2019.

Harkening back to the 2013 taper tantrum episode, emerging markets equities and currencies were hit by a significant rise in investor outflows during the first half of the year. The stronger dollar and prospect of higher U.S. interest rates had a particularly detrimental effect on countries with larger current account deficits and dollar-denominated debt, including Argentina and Turkey.

Political uncertainty and a deteriorating economic growth outlook also weighed on emerging markets returns in the first half. Brazil's nationwide truckers' strike was projected to shave a full percentage point off 2018 GDP growth, threatening the country's nascent economic recovery and further clouding the reform outlook ahead of the presidential election this fall.

Although Chinese equities held up better than most emerging market countries for the six-month period, investors became increasingly wary of escalating trade tensions as the first wave of U.S. tariffs on $34 billion of Chinese exports was scheduled to take effect on July 6.

Technology and energy were the top performing sectors on a global basis during 1H18, while telecom, financials and consumer staples underperformed. Within emerging markets, energy was the only sector in positive territory for the six-month period, benefiting from the rebound in oil prices.

Performance

Outperformance during the second quarter versus the MSCI Emerging Markets IMI (net) was primarily driven by positive stock selection across most sectors. Stock selection within Financials was particularly favourable, propelled by Indian holdings, especially HDFC Bank Ltd, India's largest bank by market capitalisation. HDFC Bank's share price advanced on the back of continued solid operating results (consistent 20% earnings growth) and a positive growth outlook. We expect robust deposit growth and the pending capital raise to support HDFC Bank's balance sheet growth and stock performance. Healthcare also added to relative returns, bolstered by Chinese pharmaceutical holdings, especially CSPC Pharmaceutical Group. The Chinese branded generic pharmaceutical company delivered strong first quarter results that significantly exceeded consensus expectations. We expect the strong operating momentum to continue, driven by the acceleration in CSPC's innovative drug segment, new drug launches and a positive regulatory backdrop.

Partially offsetting these effects were the underweight Energy and negative stock selection within the Industrials and Real Estate sectors. Within Industrials, Localiza Rent a Car SA weighed on relative returns. Localiza is Brazil's largest car rental company and a leading player in a fragmented market. Despite posting strong first quarter results, the stock was dragged down by broad weakness in Brazilian equities and currency depreciation during the quarter. China Vanke Co Ltd, the Chinese property developer, was a notable detractor within Real Estate. After strong operating performance in 2017 we expect earnings growth to moderate and government policy to become less supportive. We exited the position as a result.

Underperformance during the YTD period versus the MSCI Emerging Markets IMI (net) was driven primarily by Consumer Discretionary and Energy stock selection. Within Consumer Discretionary, automobile-related names were notable detractors. The shares of Maruti Suzuki, the largest passenger car manufacturer in India, weakened after a strong rally in 2017 as deteriorating investor sentiment and softer operating performance weighed on the stock. Despite 1H18 weakness, we believe the outlook remains compelling for Maruti, supported by improving volumes and increasing first time buyers. The company has a significant advantage with its dealership reach and breadth of models. Within Energy, stock selection was a key detractor mainly due to the lack of exposure to top performing Index holdings. In addition, Petronet LNG, the dominant importer of liquefied natural gas in India, weighed on relative performance. India is expected to become increasingly dependent on imports over the next few years, as domestic sources of gas cannot keep pace with demand growth. Petronet's shares weakened during 1H18 amid concerns about medium term supply/demand fundamentals and the potential for domestic gas to take share from imported LNG.

Mitigating these negative effects was favourable stock selection within Health Care and Information Technology. Within the Health Care sector, CSPC Pharmaceutical Group, the Chinese pharmaceutical company, boosted relative returns. CSPC has evolved from manufacturing low margin bulk products to a high quality pharma company focused on branded generics. CSPC's share price strengthened amid accelerating operating performance and improving growth outlook supported by its strong pipeline and growth in innovative drugs, coupled with a favorable regulatory backdrop. Within the Information Technology sector, Taiwanese passive components manufacturer Yageo Corp outperformed. Yageo is a beneficiary of rising demand for high-end passive components, which in turn is driven by increasing complexity in wireless communication and electronic content gains in automotive and industrial applications. Favourable industry dynamics (tight supply and strong demand in passive components) coupled with capacity expansion and recent acquisitions drove the share price higher during the first half of the year.

From a positioning perspective during the quarter, Financials exposure was reduced through positions trims and liquidations in Grupo Financiero Galicia and China Merchants Bank. Grupo Financiero Galicia, the Argentinean bank, was sold in order to eliminate Argentina exposure after rising U.S. bond yields and the stronger dollar pressured Argentinean assets, especially the peso currency. China Merchants Bank, China's leading retail bank, was sold due to a less favourable macroeconomic and regulatory backdrop for banks. Information Technology exposure was increased during the period through new purchases and additions in Electronic Equipment, Instruments & Components, Semiconductors and IT Services. Within IT Services, Tata Consultancy Services was added as we expect management's strong execution and confident growth outlook amid an improving demand backdrop in core end markets to support the company's strong operating momentum. Exposure to Healthcare increased as a result of the purchases of Bangkok Dusit Medical Services, the largest private hospital group in Thailand, and several Chinese healthcare companies. From a geographic perspective, notable adjustments were increases to South Korea and Taiwan, offset by decreases to Brazil and South Africa.

Outlook

There is now a great deal of uncertainty about how the recently announced trade tariffs will impact intermediate term economic activity. Despite some market skepticism, global growth remains broad based and robust as we head into the second half of 2018. While global manufacturing PMIs declined from unsustainably elevated levels in February and March, the latest readings suggest that we are nearing the end of the in-cycle deceleration to levels in line with ongoing growth. Near-term economic fundamentals indicate that the current economic expansion has further to run. In times of economic expansion such as the current one, we expect companies to continue to post robust earnings growth. However, earnings growth cannot continue to accelerate at the same pace we experienced over the past several quarters, especially in the U.S., where acceleration has been pronounced. European corporates have also enjoyed relatively strong earnings growth, which is also likely to continue, but at moderately slower rates in the near term.

While the underlying economy remains robust and economic indicators continue to signal positive momentum, escalating trade war rhetoric will likely have substantial consequences on market volatility, inflation, and growth dynamics over the coming quarters. As examples, tariffs on Canadian lumber are adding to higher costs for wood, which are fueling price increases of up to $9,000 for a new single-family home, according to the U.S. National Association of Homebuilders.

More broadly, some U.S. companies are reportedly using the threat of new tariffs as a reason to raise prices. In short, tariffs amount to either a tax on consumption or corporate margin deterioration if firms choose to absorb some portion of cost increases. In aggregate, it worsens the trade-off between growth and inflation, and will likely lead to tighter monetary policy. Much of this has not played out yet, because the U.S. administration has moved only recently. However, these effects will begin to manifest themselves over the coming quarters, and it is quite possible that this will bring us closer to the end of the current economic expansion cycle.

Longer term, we fear the U.S. administration's unilateral view of trade policy is suggesting an end to the decades-long building of integrated global markets and supply chains. If the U.S. chooses to limit or regulate trade however it sees fit, regardless of what agreements it may have signed in the past, trade and investment will become more volatile and more politicised. Multinationals from around the world will be more inclined to disentangle their operations from the U.S. The impact of this will only be revealed gradually over the coming years, but could imply meaningful changes to competition, quality, and innovation.
