Market Review

Global equities advanced in the third quarter primarily driven by the U.S. significantly outperforming non-US developed and emerging markets — continuing the trend of U.S. equity dominance. The U.S. bull market run became the longest in history despite escalating concerns on geopolitical tensions and rising interest rates, as Treasury bond yields surged higher in September.

U.S. equities extended year-to-date gains on robust strength in corporate earnings and positive signs of continued economic growth. Health Care and Information Technology drove outperformance. Mega-caps within IT, such as Amazon, Alphabet, and Apple, extended to record highs on consensus-beating quarterly results. This market cap leadership was representative of the broader U.S. market performance as large caps outperformed their small cap counterparts by approximately 3.2%, as measured by the MSCI U.S. Standard and Small Cap indices.

Non-U.S. developed market equity performance was mixed in the third quarter with positive performance in Japan and weaker returns in the U.K. Japanese equities rallied on the reelection of Shinzo Abe to the leadership position of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party; a positive signal to investors that Abenomics policies would continue. The reelection coupled with a weakening yen bolstered investor sentiment in September bringing Japanese equities into positive territory year-to-date. Within the U.K., the pound slumped to an 11-month low versus the U.S. dollar on Brexit uncertainty and growing fears about the potential collapse in talks. U.K. equities recovered in September, but remained down (-2.00% MSCI U.K. IMI) for the quarter.

Emerging markets equities continued to decline in the third quarter and year-to-date amid heightened geopolitical tension and a strengthening U.S. dollar. The Turkish Lira plunged to record lows following the U.S.-imposed sanctions on Turkey for failure to release evangelical pastor Brunson. Russian and South Africa currencies sold off in solidarity with the Turkish Lira. Trade war rhetoric remained a headwind for China, compounded by concerns about decelerating macro indicators and the weakening renminbi currency, which further weighed on sentiment and Chinese equities broadly.

From a style perspective, value-oriented market leadership accelerated in September within non-U.S. developed and emerging markets. The broad sell-off of growth oriented stocks across emerging markets was most pronounced within China and India, as measured by the MSCI China IMI Growth and the MSCI India IMI Growth indices.

Performance

Underperformance versus the MSCI ACWI IMI (net) was driven by a combination of allocation and stock selection effects. Overweight Consumer Discretionary coupled with negative stock selection within Information Technology and Energy detracted from performance during the quarter. Positive stock selection within Industrials and Materials were the largest contributors to positive relative returns.

Within Information Technology, Tencent Holdings hampered relative results. Shares of the Chinese online gaming and social network giant came under pressure when regulators announced plans to curtail the number of new online games and to employ new methods to reduce the playing time of minors. We believe this is a temporary issue. Tencent's previous implementation of age-based time limits on games had a very limited impact on gaming revenue, and we expect it will remain well-engaged with government concerns and continue to proactively address cultural concerns around the business model. Suncor Energy, the Canadian upstream producer within the Energy sector, announced lower than expected production growth due to increased maintenance downtime. Looking forward, maintenance spend should be significantly lower, resulting in strong operating performance and a return of cash to shareholders.

Mitigating these detractors was positive stock selection within Industrials, as Southwest Airlines bolstered relative results. Historically, the U.S. airline industry exhibited a grow or die philosophy where deregulation and abundant capacity at key airports forced carriers to expand rapidly to build scale, box out competition, and grab key landing and takeoff slots at the expense of profitability. After the deep economic recession in 2009, elevated fuel prices and stretched balance sheets led to yet another period of poor profitability. Subsequently, U.S. airlines embarked on rapid consolidation, and now the top four carriers control nearly 86% of the U.S. air travel market. Capacity growth has been the slowest post deregulation, leading to sharply higher load factors, stable pricing, higher ancillary fees and sharply higher margins. Given this industry backdrop, Southwest Airlines is positioned to perform well. It exhibits differentiation relative to its peers due to an entrenched network, superior service offering and a strong brand resonance. It operates a point to point service instead of a traditional hub and spoke model that relies on fewer but more utilized routes, providing direct connection between cities that otherwise need a lengthy hub transfer. The fact that Southwest operates a mostly domestic network is another advantage as the other carriers operate international routes that are fiercely competitive with structural advantages that are less apparent relative to the slot and capacity constrained domestic network.

Nissan Chemical, the innovative Japanese producer of niche chemicals for the electronics, agriculture, and pharmaceutical industries, boosted relative performance within the Materials sector. Nissan Chemical has a leading position in their core products and a track record of innovation supported by its commitment to high levels of research and development. The ability to post good growth in the context of challenging smartphone/display market continues to show Nissan's strength.

Positioning

During the period, Health Care exposure was increased through the purchase of Illumina, the clear global leader in the growing field of genomics and the technology leader in gene sequencing. The company is enabling the rapid growth in our understanding of genetic variation and the role it plays in health, disease, and drug response. Illumina has a durable, competitive advantage with its dominant market share and its ability to continue to innovate to develop new technologies much faster than its competitors. We expect it to drive and capture the majority of the industry's growth going forward and believe growth estimates are conservative. Financials exposure was reduced during the period. BNP Paribas, the leading French bank, was sold for better growth opportunities elsewhere. Exposure to Consumer Discretionary also declined as a result of the liquidations of Yum China and Valeo. We exited Yum China after the shares rallied on news of a buyout by private equity firm Hillhouse Capital, which it reportedly later abandoned. Valeo, the global auto component manufacturer, was sold due to recent poor execution coupled with a broad slowdown in autos. From a geographic perspective, notable adjustments were an increase in the U.S. offset by a decrease in Japan exposure. The portfolio's weighting in Emerging Markets approximated 7.5% at the end of the period, down from 8.5% at the beginning of the period.

Outlook

As we head into the final quarter of 2018, surveys suggest that global growth is likely to decelerate modestly into the remainder of this year. Specifically, purchasing manager surveys continue to point to deceleration in the pace of industrial orders growth and subsequent industrial production growth. Given substantial and relatively abrupt changes in US trade policy, we now expect near term economic activity to slow somewhat as firms work out the new rules and adjust to the impact on their supply chains.

At the same time, we expect the growing divergence between the US and other economies to begin to normalize. Specifically, in Q2

2018 the US economy expanded at an annual rate of 4.2% — the rate of growth which we believe is likely to mark the cyclical high. Consistent with this high economy-wide growth rate, corporate earnings growth accelerated to 22% YoY, a decade high (excluding the post GFC bounce). Barring additional policy support, it is difficult to see US corporates maintaining this rate of profit growth. If the rest of the world continues to grow at the current pace, while the US economy slows marginally, the growth wedge and by extension the substantial outperformance of US markets vis-à-vis the rest of the world is likely to moderate from here.

Rising US yields and increasing fiscal deficits in emerging markets (EMs) have reduced US dollar liquidity in 2018. More recently, higher oil prices in the wake of the US re-imposing economic sanctions on Iran contribute to a more challenging macroeconomic environment for the EMs, as many are large energy importers. Beyond these broader macro headwinds, turbulence within EM equities and currencies has been largely idiosyncratic and self-inflicted: the South African government reopening the possibility of farm repossession, for example, and the upcoming presidential election in Brazil where the top two contenders are from the far-right and the far-left. Increasingly reckless economic policies in Turkey and the exposed fragility of the Indian financial system have also compounded EM underperformance versus developed markets.

On September 24th, the Trump administration implemented 10% tariffs on $200 billion worth of imported goods from China, which will increase to a rate of 25% on January 1st, 2019. This is in addition to the $50 billion of tariffs that were implemented in July and August. While the first set of tariffs was initially focused on industrial goods such as materials, machinery, and chemicals, the second round of tariffs is targeting over 5,700 consumer goods, including agricultural products, textiles, and furniture.

With the implementation of the second round of tariffs including consumer goods, we are expecting inflation from the additional tariffs to pick up in the near term. Corporations that are affected by the additional tariffs will either have to absorb the costs themselves, leading to a decrease in margins, or will pass along the additional costs to the end consumer to keep their profits intact. As cost increases are pushed to the consumer, we are expecting to see an uptick in inflation starting in 2019.

Through much of this year, China has been implementing significant and wide-spread changes in its tax structure, affecting both corporate and income taxes. Reducing taxes for households is expected to support consumer demand in China. We are not expecting China to implement a large stimulus, but slow policy changes have been made to keep growth steady. Year to date, the renminbi is down nearly 6% against the US dollar. As the dollar strengthens, further depreciation cannot be ruled out.

From a portfolio strategy perspective, positioning within our ACWI-oriented strategies has generally reflected our more cautious outlook, with reduced EM weightings in favor of increased developed market exposure. Within our dedicated EM strategies, we have maintained overweighted positions in India and Mexico, and underweighted exposures in Korea and Taiwan. Within China, our positioning continues to emphasize domestically-oriented consumer, healthcare and technology companies that we believe are well positioned to benefit from the economy's ongoing transition to a consumption and services-driven growth model.
